WILL REORGANIZE SOON

Meeting Called For November 8
—Emphasizes Necessity of Protecting Funds

The Bismarck county chapter of the Red Cross will hold a reorganization meeting on November 8, which is expected to be an especially important meeting in view of the change of Red Cross activities from a war-time to a peace-time basis.

Work of the chapter was reviewed today by Dr. F. R. Smyth, chairman of the chapter and Mrs. Thomas H. Poole, secretary, whose terms of office expire following the expiration of the war. Many problems of service men were brought before the Red Cross, and they have not diminished. The expenditures of funds of the Red Cross is within limits laid down in the rules and by-laws of the national organization, and Dr. Smyth, in reviewing the work, emphasized the necessity of protecting the funds now in the treasury so that they shall not be dissipated from the true purpose of the Red Cross for any other object.

Outlines Red Cross Work
In a statement outlining the chapter's work Dr. Smyth said: "Our country being now on a peace footing it is difficult for many people to appreciate the necessity for further Red Cross activities or the need for an appeal for support for that organization."

The Red Cross, as it exists in America was founded for the purpose of giving speedy and efficient aid and relief in time of catastrophe or great disaster, involving human lives, and causing suffering and distress. It was also entrusted with the mission of alleviating the horrors of war by services to the sick and wounded soldiers during the war.

"When we entered the inferno of the world war, with horrors and slaughter unprecedented in history the war work of the Red Cross so far exceeded all its other activities that simply a war agency to be scrapped with other war agencies when peace came."

"As a matter of fact the Red Cross was never a war agency and under international law could not be. It is a national body recognized as such by all civilized nations and given all the rights and protection granted to neutrals, even on the field of battle."

"It is now on a peace program and the local chapter by permission of national headquarters has engaged in local relief work to an extent that is taxing its available funds and will require great efforts to supply additional means of increasing its membership roll call."

"Contrary to popular opinion the Red Cross has no funds except dues from members and contributions from citizens interested. Neither the federal state nor local governments contribute money or share expenses with the organization. The local chapter has advanced money for a large part of the expense has been incurred in assisting in the work of the government, war risk vocational training and other bureau work."

What Chapter Has Done
The chapter assisted 699 men in making claims for compensation, medical and dental reinstatement of insurance, state bonus, travel pay, adjusting allowances etc., visited disabled men in the government hospitals, here assisting them with their claims for compensation and in other ways."

The Red Cross social worker worked with many civilian families throughout the county, investigated cases for township officials, teachers and others bringing about adjustment in the homes and following up the placements to see that they were satisfactory, arranging for medical and dental care when there was no other source of help and where the need was immediate assisted the clean-up squads on two occasions furnishing stenographers for the work and publishing in advance of the squads, and also furnished lunch to the men called in to be interviewed."

Many Claims Denied
The chapter also has aided ex-service men in seeking to locate friends ex-service men sick in other towns who have relatives here and desire funds with which to reach them ex-service men's claims for compensation on which they are working in obtaining affidavits from comrades in the war furnishing subsistence and the rent for families of ex-service men missing for unexplained reasons men missing for assistance are made. Many claims for assistance are made which under the rules cannot be granted. And Dr. Smyth said it should be understood that the Red Cross is not allowed to subsidize any other organization or give funds to any other organization no matter how deserving they may be. All funds expended must be under the direction of officials of the Red Cross and accounted for to the national organization."

BISMARCK MAN HEARS PARENTS IN RUSSIA ARE FACING STARVATIONWay is Pointed Out Whereby Food Drafts May Be Sent Through Hoover Relief Administration to Aid Relatives or Friends in Russia—Prompt Action Promised By Relief Administration

A Bismarck man this week heard from his parents in Russia for the first time since 1916.

They had been well to-do in Russia but now face starvation. They told their son that if they did not get food soon they would starve. They have been obtaining meager subsistence by hauling wood 120 miles and exchanging it for flour and other food. A year ago they had eight horses, now they have but three. The others died through lack of sufficient food.

The letter prompted an immediate inquiry by the local man as to how he could send food or money to his parents.

The local chapter of the Red Cross has received information from Herbert Hoover's American Relief Administration to the effect that arrangements have been completed between the administration and the Soviet government of Russia whereby food drafts may be transferred by persons residing in the United States to relatives and friends in Russia.

The food drafts may be purchased through the American Relief Administration at No. 42 Broadway, New York, Washington or London. One may be purchased for $10 or they may be purchased in multiples of $10, none less than this amount. Instructions state that draft money order or certified check should accompany the request.

The relief administration notifies the administration offices in Moscow, Russia, which in turn notify warehouse, closest to the party for whom the food is intended and it is delivered. If the party is not found within 30 days the money is returned.

The Bismarck man immediately purchased food drafts for his parents.

SUPREME COURT
SETS JAMESTOWN
CASE FOR NOV. 8Hearing Will Be Held in Supreme Court on Judge Coffey's
Injunction Order

NEW ISSUES IN CASE

Hearing in the 'Jamestown case' upon the supreme court's order to District Judge Coffey and the plaintiffs in the action to show cause why the high court order dissolving the Coffey order should not be made permanent will be held on Tuesday, November 8, at 10 o'clock in the supreme court chambers here.

The court which had postponed the hearing from Nov. 1 on its own motion today also on its own motion set the case for hearing next Tuesday.

In connection with hearing on the case in which District Judge Coffey issued an order declaring the Bank of North Dakota insolvent and prohibiting it from receiving deposits, the court will consider the motion filed in behalf of Secretary of State Hall and State Superintendent Minnie J. Nielson, defendants, who joined with plaintiffs in motion to quash supreme court's order.

Unusual importance is now attached to the case since the defeat of the initiative law proposing the abolition of the Bank of North Dakota and tax-payers and attorneys who instituted the Jamestown suit have made known their intention to pursue it to the conclusion and intend to have the bank held insolvent, which they hope would be followed by appointment of the receiver to wind up its affairs.

The Spitzer, Rottick company band purchase contract also will enter into the case. There has been demand among some independentists that the contract be cancelled while the administration desires to deliver the bonds immediately to release the money for use in the state in this connection Treasurer John Stein announced that he had received a letter from an eastern bond house, dated Nov. 1 asking if there were any North Dakota bonds for sale, and stating that the bond market had eased up and that bonds were formerly were not issued because of low rate of interest could be sold now.

TRACING CLUES
IN SLAYING OF
SLOPE FARMERAlfred Beier Found in Pool of Blood in Lonely Home
South of Dickinson

POST-MORTEM PERFORMED

Physicians Believe Man Was Killed by a Blow From a
Blunt Instrument

Dickinson, N. D., Nov. 5.—Stark county officials are seeking the slayer of Alfred Beier whose body was found in a pool of blood in a lonely farm home near Scheffeld 17 miles southwest of Dickinson. The body was found by neighbors who became alarmed at his prolonged absence.

Physicians who conducted a post-mortem examination of the body believed Beier was killed by a blow on the right ear which crushed his skull. An examination of the body showed a deep bruise from a blunt instrument on the right temple.

According to the story told by John Flaith, he had sent his wife to the Boer home early Monday morning to ascertain whether or not Beier was away or sick. Upon her arrival at the house she found the door locked on the outside by a padlock as was Beier's custom when away from the farm. Despite this fact, however, she made further investigation by opening the window of the living room and upon looking into the room she saw the body of the dead body. She immediately went to the door, told her husband who ran to the house, and a short distance away and together the neighbors went to investigate. Upon finding the body they drove to Dickinson and informed the officials, who drove to the farm and removed the body to the Boulger & Hughes undertaking parlors in Dickinson where a post-mortem was performed. The findings of the physicians established the fact that Beier had been murdered.

Follow Up Shreds
Since that time officials have been following up shreds of evidence that would tend to give clues to the guilty parties. Parties under suspicion are being closely watched and it is believed that arrests will follow within the week.

The coroners' inquest, which commenced in the office of State Attorney James P. Cain Wednesday afternoon, was continued until Monday, Nov. 7, in order that additional evidence might be secured.

Testimony offered by neighbors at the hearing Wednesday gave the officials no new evidence to follow in their search. Mrs. John Flaith testified that she had been sent to the Beier home by her husband to see if Beier "was sick or anything." Upon her arrival there she found the doors locked and made the investigation as stated above. She also stated that on Saturday, October 22 she had seen a short stout man approach the Beier home over the field from the northeast and after remaining there for a short time disappeared in the same direction. She declared that this occurred about 10:30 o'clock in the morning and that she watched the man come and go from the top of a shed at her home. She said that there seemed nothing suspicious either in his approach or departure.

On the witness stand Flaith testified that he had sent his wife to the Beier home because he feared that something had happened to Beier for the reason that he (Flaith) had not seen Beier for a week. When asked why he did not go himself he replied that "he was afraid of getting killed but entertained no such fear for his wife." He also admitted that there had been trouble between himself and Beier for some time past and that threats to kill had been made. Both Flaith and his wife declared that they had heard loud talking and quarreling at the Beier home early Sunday evening but did not know who was there.

Was a Cripple
Peter Braun another neighbor said that Flaith came to his home Monday morning and told him that Beier was dead and that his son together with Flaith went to the home where they found the body. Braun testified that he had been told that the place should not be disturbed until after the officials had been notified.

Beier had suffered for some time from rheumatism which had made him a cripple and he was able to get around only with great difficulty. For many months he had been actively engaged in the illicit manufacture of home brew and had sold it in large quantities. Two months ago he was arrested by revenue officers who searched his place on complaint of Flaith who had been seen by Beier for the recovery of a calf. Beier was taken to Park where he was fined by Judge C. L. Amidon in the federal court for being a bootlegger. Immediately upon his return to Stark county he resumed his illicit trade.

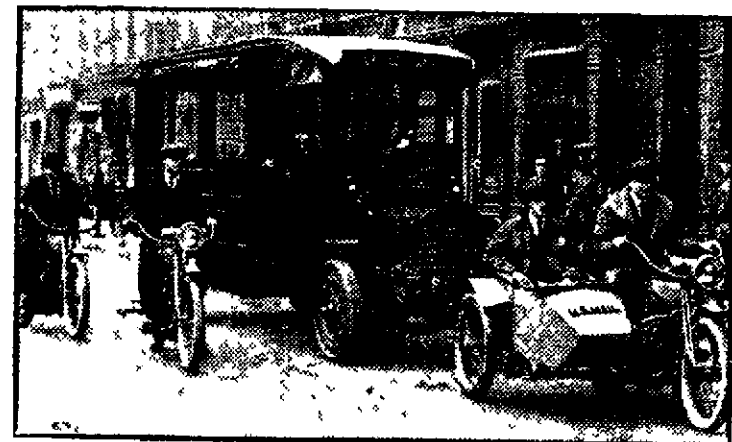

On the night of the murder he was in the kitchen where his body was found was a ten gallon can of oil. Nearby was still galvanized iron. A quantity of home brew.

ASSASSIN WAS DEMENTED

Found To Be Son of One of Lower Nobility Who Served in High Places

Tokio, Nov. 5.—(By the Associated Press).—The Japanese cabinet resigned office after a meeting of the members held this morning.

The cabinet held a number of meetings following the assassination yesterday of Premier Hara who was stabbed to death by a demented youth. The cabinet met under Viscount Uchida, the foreign minister, to whose designation as acting premier the imperial approval was given at the palace shortly after the tragedy, resigned.

It became known today that the assassin was the son of the former member of the samurai, or soldier class, constituting the lower nobility under the Japanese feudal system who had been a man of importance during the restoration period. The son it appears was of an erratic nature and is regarded as a political fanatic. He was arrested immediately after the stabbing.

Premier Hara it developed from details of Friday's tragic event that have come out, never spoke after the first onset of the assassin who thrust his knife into the premier's breast, close to the heart.

The premier collapsed instantly. He carried him to the station master's office and a physician member of the party gave him immediate medical attention. He did not revive however, and died within an hour without regaining consciousness.

His wife who had been summoned shortly after the attack reached the station too late to see him alive.

Cablegrams expressing horror over the assassination yesterday of Takashi Hara, Japanese premier, poured in to all nations. The attack on M. Hara was made by a demented youth and there is no definite knowledge as yet that it had its genesis in the political rivalry which actuated bitter assaults upon M. Hara and his government in the recent past.

DID NOT LIVE LONG
Washington, Nov. 5.—Takashi Hara, premier of Japan, was stabbed at 7:25 P. M. Friday and died soon afterward. The Japanese embassy here was advised today by the Tokyo foreign office in the first word of the assassination to reach Washington from the Japanese government.

Admiral Baron Kato, one of the Japanese delegates to the armament conference, acting in accord with other members of the Hara cabinet today cabled his resignation as minister of marine, to Tokyo.

The resignation of the cabinet, it was explained by Japanese here, was wholly a matter of form and without political significance.

PEOPLE COMING INTO CITY FOR 'FOUR HORSEMEN'

Eltinge Theater Production
Draws Large Number
From Other Places

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" showing at the Eltinge this week is serving as entertainment not only to the people of Bismarck, but to many from the surrounding towns and country. A lady was heard to remark "this must be a 'Mandan' night" on Thursday evening when she discovered the large number of Mandan people waiting to secure seats upon her arrival. Weston, Washburn, New Salem, Hebron and other nearby towns are represented at every performance. Not since the "Dollar Sales Days" in September, have so many outside people been attracted to Bismarck as the "Four Horsemen" at the Eltinge have drawn. It is a noticeable fact in the show business that one of the best recommendations for an entertainment are the satisfied people who have witnessed it. A steady increase in the attendance would suggest that "The Four Horsemen" show was satisfying the public. It has been a matter of surprise and satisfaction to people to find that the music is furnished by local musicians as the difficult score could be handled in no better shape had an orchestra been brought here from Minneapolis for the occasion.

Owing to the cost of putting on this attraction it was decided to play the picture for an entire week, something never before attempted in Bismarck and it is a matter of no little satisfaction to the Eltinge management to find that the people of Bismarck and vicinity are ready to respond to the big effort that has been made to give them something worth while in the entertainment line. The successful showing of this production encourages the Eltinge to bring other large productions to Bismarck.

THE SUNFLOWER TO TAKE PLACE OF THE ORCHID

New York, Nov. 4.—The farmer boy, the printer's devil and the workaday clerk are going to have their pictures on the billboards and magazine pages this winter. They will replace some of the swaggar young men who have been posing several seasons for the artists hired by collar and clothes manufacturers. Not a few of these concerns have concluded that the orchid is not the flower of young American manhood, and they are going in for sunflowers.

They say the buying public doesn't like the pink-cheeked men who have been showing the readers of advertisements what to wear. They seem to have nothing to do but watch polo ponies, indifferently peer at youths in the cove or ignore the football players on the field below them.

"LIBRARY ON WHEELS" DELIVERS BOOKS TO RURAL READERS

In order to swap talk with girls in vivid sweaters and sport skirts. People began calling them pretty boys, cake eaters, lounge lizards, sissies. Humorists poked fun at them and the good old common people who bought most of the collars and suits said "If that's the kind of a face you have to have to be well dressed, I'll go through life a slouch."

But now they are going to show the public that one can be a regular everyday fellow with a job and still be smartly clothed. Last winter there was a warm discussion within the National Association of Retail Clothiers as to the public attitude toward the "pretty men" in advertisements.

This fall the result of this discussion is apparent. Recently the new catalogue of a nationally-known clothing house was published without a single ballroom scene, bridge party or clubhouse etching. Virile settings supplanted them.

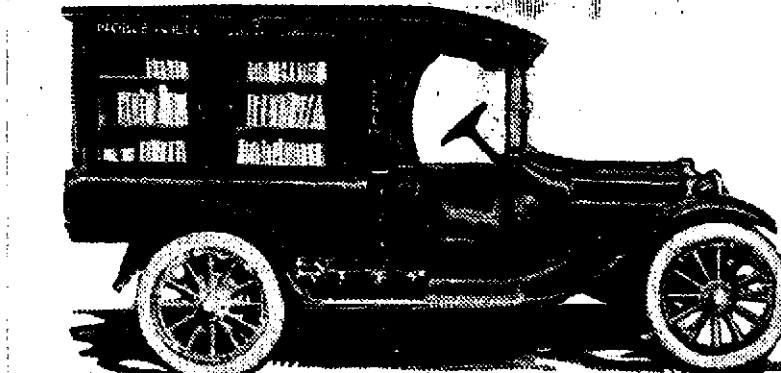

There was a drawing of an old tar talking to two sturdy youths beside a ship, a freighter, it was, not a passenger carrier. Another showed a well-dressed office worker working. He was within sound of a printing press. A third pictured a farmer dressed up for a trip into town. He bore a business-like mien and apparently was just giving some final instructions to the hired man on the tractor when the artist happened along.

THE "LIBRARY ON WHEELS" WHICH SUPPLIES RURAL READERS WITH BOOKS.

If the country folks can't get in to the town libraries, take the libraries to them.

That's what is being done in many states in the middle west, with the aid of the "library-on-wheels."

The library auto starts out every morning, except Sunday, on a forty to fifty-mile trip through the farm district.

Three hundred books are contained on shelves in the auto. Farm folks pick out books and magazines, and turn back those picked on a previous trip.

SWIFT TRIAL TRANSFERRED TO BOWMAN CO.

Joe Swift, who shot and killed Howard Smith at Selfridge about two years ago, will be tried at the next term of court in Bowman county. The case was brought to Morton county and the states attorney has now requested and was granted a change of venue to Bowman county, saying so much publicity had been given it would be impossible to obtain a fair and unprejudiced jury.

Miss Lulu M. Miesse, of the Noblesville, Ind., library first introduced the idea in her state. She contended that the branch library idea was not successful. School children used the books at the branch libraries, but the grown folks didn't.

A motor car was then equipped with books, and a catalogue was sent to all residents in the vicinity. A large bell announces the coming of the "library-on-wheels."

It is estimated that the library autos now running in the middle west serve from 8,000 to 10,000 rural homes each.

FIVE SOLDIERS ARE PARDONED

Secretary Weeks Says Its Only Way Justice Can Be Done Them

Washington, Nov. 4.—Pardon for five American soldiers convicted by court-martial of the murder of Capt. George Lansfield, of the British army, in Germany last year has been recommended by Secretary Weeks. The men, James O'Dell, Ray O. Youngblood, George Van Gilder, Carl J. Bryan, and James B. Richardson are serving life sentences in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

Mr. Weeks based his recommendation on the ground that the court-martial which tried and convicted the men jointly had "condemned" "infelicitous men" and pardon was the only way in which justice could be done them.

EPISCOPALS TO OBSERVE 100TH MISSION YEAR

Special Services Will Be Held In St. George's Church In Bismarck Sunday

INSTITUTION FOLLOWS FLAG

Tomorrow marks the hundredth anniversary of the beginning of foreign missionary work by the Episcopal church of America. A hundred years ago yesterday the first missionaries were sent from the church into foreign lands.

Special services will be held in every church in the United States. Choral Eucharist will be held at St. George's church here tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

Growth of Work.

Where, in 1821, the year the society was organized, 30,000 people in 28 dioceses confined to the United States, represented the church which is one with the society, and expended $7,000 on mission work; now a total of 5,000,000 are associated with the organization in 83 dioceses scattered all over the world, in whose behalf last year there was spent $2,700,000 in missionary service. And while a hundred years ago, the services of the church were conducted in English alone, at this forthcoming celebration the century's achievements of the society will be sung and told in a score of tongues, including Chinese, Japanese and Eskimau, Spanish, Hungarian, the languages of the Sioux Indian and the patois the West African native, and Italian.

Institution Follows Flag.

It is the proud boast of the members of this society that it is peculiarly an American institution with a distinct claim to credit for no small part in the rounding out of the American civilization of today. Organized in 1821 under the leadership of Bishop William White of Pennsylvania, chairman of the first congress under the constitution—in whose church Washington and Hamilton, Madison Monroe and Franklin worshipped—its missionaries struck out into the wilds in the days when all was wilderness west of the Ohio river, and through all the long and romantic history of the conquest of the continent, and the expansion of the nation beyond the seas have steadily followed the flag; so that today, wherever the American flag floats, the missionaries of the society are engaged in the practical work of the church.

To Have More Missionaries.

An addition of one hundred missionaries to the field force is contemplated, and building projects embracing new schools, churches and hospitals are in contemplation. Pageants are being produced to symbolize these triumphs of a hundred years for the purpose of paving the way for increased activities during the next century and to get the young people of the church interested in the work.

Aside from the gift of offering which will be taken up in the churches are the thanksgiving services of November 6, the anniversary being purely historical and educational.

To Choose Queen of Athletic Carnival

The athletic carnival to be held at the high school on December 2 promises to be the banner celebration of the local school this year. Big plans are being made at the present time by all the classes of the high school and junior high.

The contest for the carnival queen will begin today, Nov. 5, at one o'clock. There are four candidates for the honored position chosen from the two upper classes of the school. They are: Lois Larson and Mildred Farr of the senior class, and Kathleen Harris and Helen Skinner of the junior class. Ballot boxes have been placed in the lobby of the Lewis & Clark hotel and the Mandan Drug store.

Votes for the candidates are to be accompanied by one penny and the sky is the limit. The ballots will be counted on Nov. 28th, the Monday after Thanksgiving.

The main attractions for the carnival, which will be held throughout the entire high and central school buildings are a very fine Orpheum program direct from the circuit, a minstrel show by the famous Darktown troupe direct from Cork, and a Dutch band.

MORE ORDERLY MARKETING OF LIVE STOCK

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Plans for the orderly marketing of livestock, designed to insure a stabilized market and prevent fluctuations in price costly to the farmer, have been worked out by the Orderly Marketing committee of the Committee of Fifteen. This latter committee is composed of farmer representatives named by J. R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The orderly marketing plans, together with the full report of the Committee of Fifteen, will be submitted to a ratification conference here Nov. 10. The conference is designed to be representative of livestock raisers of the country.

Announcement of the findings of the orderly marketing committee, whose chairman is A. Sykes of Ida Grove, Ia., president of the Cornbelt Meat Producers Association, is made here, prior to the ratification meeting. The report says in part:

"A survey of the production and marketing of livestock and live stock products emphasizes the necessity of devising a more orderly system of marketing than now prevails. There is no one group of men representing producers who can speak with sufficient authority to put into execution any effective plan which might be suggested.

"Fundamental facts prevent the development of a thorough system of orderly marketing at present. There is but little reliable information available as to the supply and demand for live stock to be marketed or as to the time of the marketing. It has been impossible to secure the cooperation of entrenched existing agencies upon a general plan of orderly marketing to which all interests will give hearty support and cooperation.

"Orderly marketing can best be brought about through the cooperative selling agencies developed to such a point that they may direct the flow of live stock to the market.

"As the plans for orderly marketing develop it will be necessary to take into consideration not only the flow of live stock to the market but also the distribution of meat and by-products in an orderly manner through the various channels of trade.

Principles the committee laid down as these:

"The Committee believes that the accomplishment of the more orderly marketing of different kinds of live stock is a long-time process. There is no easy way or any outstanding short cuts that will gain the desired end.

"There must be a broad campaign of education which stresses the ways and means to secure more orderly marketing or live stock.

"There must be dependable information as to all supplies which information must be intelligently interpreted and put into use by live stock producers and live stock shipping and marketing agencies, that have a genuine desire and willingness to cooperate for the good of all concerned.

"Organizations of large numbers of producers properly organized and conducted on a strictly cooperative plan are essential to real enduring success if the more orderly marketing of live stock is to be attained.

"Some regulation of conditions and volume of production must ultimately come if orderly marketing is accomplished."

Essentials of an orderly marketing program were thus outlined by the committee:

1. Reliable statistical information is absolutely indispensable.
2. There must be established definite methods for regulating the flow of various kinds of live stock toward the market in order to more equitably distribute the receipts. The method will differ depending upon the different kinds of live stock involved.

There must be a working agreement with the railroads to insure the proper distribution of cars so as to carry out any plan of orderly marketing.

The report adds that the National Live Stock Board of Directors, which it is designed to create, should cooperate with the various existing live stock producers' organizations in working out a system of orderly marketing. Orderly marketing of hogs, cattle and sheep are considered separately.

THE ROPING AT PASCO'S
By
RAY STANNARD BAKER

Copyright, 1921, by Ray Stannard Baker. By arrangement with McClure's Magazine and The Literary Digest Newspaper Syndicate

There was to be a roping at Pasco's. Turk McGlory came riding a painted pony with his blanket tucked up under the brow of his saddle cantle and his big wheel spurs tinkling to every ambulating step of the pinto. All the signs proclaimed that Turk was from Texas. His saddle was double-cinch, his rope was of hemo as thick as your thumb and only half as long as the Arizona rawhide mata, and there were Colorado conchos on his bridle and a silver spade bit that cost more than the pinto himself. He had ridden far for his eyebrows were powdered with fine white dust, and his flannel-clad cañon rubbed light against his saddle flank. Turk McGlory was whistling "La Paloma," and calculating what he would do with the prize—which he already regarded as won. Turk had big innocent blue eyes that looked straight out at you from the desert wrinkles of his brown face, a little white mustache, the first fruits of manhood, and good-natured, firm lips. There was something so irresistibly new about him that Carver, the head-judge of the roping, instinctively called him "the Kid."

You shall see Pasco's. Brown, "dobe" huts in the midst of a wide gray plain, built in the foreground like upholders with knobs of sagebrush; a railroad gleaming across it like a chalkline; dim blue mountains, ragged along the top, set up in the distance. Out from the town, on the right, a dusty road led to a huge corral used for a race-course, with a steer pen in one corner. Cow punchers were saddling, tightening cinches, mounting and riding up and down in bustling confusion, a crowd was gathering to the grand stand at one side; a tall fellow in a white sombrero was bawling for bets on the contest; and over all glared the hot white Arizona sunshine. Pasco's was hard at his favorite sport. Steer-roping is the fine art of the cattle-ranger; it is also the chief business of the cow-boy. No other great sport is so closely linked with the daily work of the soil, no other work has in it so many of the elements of wild sport.

Turk McGlory, riding into the corral, felt all the eyes of Pasco's heavy upon him. He felt somehow that they knew, especially the women knew, that this was to be his first public roping. He wished that they also knew of his wild riding and tying with the Lazy A outfit, and then he was glad that they didn't. Out on the plains he had felt the strength of every muscle in his lanky six feet, and he was certain of winning; but now he felt needlessly large, loose, obstructive, and for one panicky second he was riding away, prizes to the wind. Then he clapped his teeth shut and dismounted.

"By—," he said, "I stay." Here at the pen, where a dozen wild steers were crowding and panting, were knotted the cow-boys and their admirers. Carver and his judges, and the small men who were betting. With a throb of the heart, Turk recognized Bud Oliver, to him the greatest man on the cattle-range. No man between Texas and Los Angeles was his equal for roping and tying. Turk McGlory would rather have been Bud Oliver than governor of Texas. Turk was the champion, receiving his friends like a king, giving them an off-hand word or a clap on the back—a hopelessly inimitable perfection of good-fellowship. And then there was Buster Graham, the champion of Arizona, and Halversen, a square man with a jaw like a bulldog's. Doc Mason, who had roped with Buffalo Bill, and a number of others whose names were great in the roping field. Turk's heart was down, and down when he thought of competing with men like these, and then it suddenly leaped up with the realization that he was in such company, a part of it, and he resolved that he would never leave the field until every man in it recognized him as a roper, too.

Little groups of people were drifting by to the grand stand. Here and there, from the corner of his eye, as he bent to adjust the saddle-cinches, Turk McGlory caught the glint of a white skirt or of a flowing ribbon. Sometimes the girls stopped to discuss the contestants; he heard them talking of Bud Oliver, and Mason, and Buster Graham. Suddenly, as he tightened a lagro strap, a saucy, smiling face looked up at him. Her sister was evidently trying to pull her away, but she said, half teasingly, "I'm wearing your colors, Mr. Texas. You must win."

He saw nothing but deep black eyes, and he felt the blood in his face. He couldn't have spoken if he had known that it was to save his life, and he knew that he was smiling foolishly. She looked back over her shoulder, raising a mischievous finger. "Remember!" she said. Turk took two steps after her, and then went back to his saddle. She was in blue and white; he wore a blue and white silk handkerchief knotted loosely, cow-boy fashion, about his throat. Whatever else he saw, he also saw her until she was in her place in the grand stand. Someone shouted, a flagman rode out from the pen on a sleek city horse, the admirers and the bettors slowly worked away, leaving the cow-boys and the judges around the pen. The contest was about to begin. Turk observed that every contestant except Bud Oliver and himself was an Arizona or New Mexico man—single-cinches, white sombreros, rowel spurs, and all that Turk himself wore a big black-crowned hat, trousers sagging so low as to make him appear extraordinarily long waisted and big shouldered, high heeled Mexican boots, and a vest, unbuttoned, but no coat. He stepped with peculiar roll, seen only in those dwellers on horses, to whom walking is an unthought exercise to be avoided. An attendant was dropping one of the bars of the pen twenty-five feet in

FROM $58 TO $156 A MONTH!

BY BOB DORVAN.
Ford efficiency means happier employees on the D. T. & I. J. F. Stevens was a crossing watchman at Detroit when Henry Ford bought the railroad. He drew $58 a month and worked every day. Now he makes $156 a month and has every Sunday off. Since Ford showed Stevens how he could do it, he not only tends the crossing, but sweeps the walks, does odd carpenter jobs, polices the track and otherwise makes himself useful. "Not a minute is wasted any more," says Stevens. And how he likes it!

flash. It was a runty red steer, and the rope, opening from Halversen's hand like a coil spring, settled over the steer's horns. There was a wild, scrambling rush, Halversen's horse turning to one side as the plunging animal. The rope pulled taut with a snap, and the steer turned a somersault in the dust, but the strain on the single-cinch saddle was too great, and it turned. Halversen, still clinging to the rope, was jerked to the ground, his horse leaping to one side and kicking himself wildly clear of the saddle. For a single instant Halversen was able to regain his feet, and then he went down and the steer dragged him in the dust, rolling him over and over with the saddle. The crowd was shouting its excitement; the judges, the flagman, and most of the cow-men came riding hard to help. Halversen, grit to the backbone, sprang to his feet, still clinging to the rope. At that instant the steer, headed off, turned sharply to the right, and Halversen, instantly seeing his opportunity, ran to the left; then, suddenly, he snubbed hard on the rope, jerked the steer's feet out from under him. It is a thing that the best cow-boys can do only occasionally. Halversen darted forward to tie, but the steer, having time to recover from the force of the fall, was hind feet up when Halversen pounded upon him, seizing his tail. One foot to the left of the steer's hind legs and a sudden strong pull, and the steer was down again—all in the space of two seconds. And then, though there was the wildest kicking and struggling, Halversen, bulldog that he was, tied his animal down and threw up his bloody arms. He was torn and bruised, but he had tied his steer. Of course he could not win, he had been more than three minutes at the struggle, but the crowd made up to him for the failure in the warmth of its reception. It had been three minutes of such excitement as comes in no other sport.

And so, one after another, the contestants rode forward to the fall of the flag—it was a Homeric list—but one by one they failed to equal the record of Buster Graham, although a little red Scotchman named Morse came within six seconds of it. Turk McGlory lost all hope for himself, but he still felt brave for his hero. Bud Oliver would do it if any one could. And it was now Bud's turn. He and Bud had been left to the last. The nearer his time came the oftener he glanced up to the grand stand, to the girl in blue and white. The pool-seller was now crying his name and Bud's together.

"What am I offered on Bud Oliver, champion of Texas—who will give me now close behind. There was all too little room here in the track. The steer would evidently plunge full into the crowd. Turk McGlory's arm shot forward and the rope sped. The pinto sat sharply back, throwing McGlory well over the pommel. To those in the grand stand it seemed as if the steer, all horns and eyes, was plucked out of their faces. When they looked again, McGlory was tying, and the judges and the other punchers were swarming through the gap in the fence. Hands up, and the pinto easing away on the rope. It was all lost, McGlory felt. The fence had been in the way. Why couldn't they provide an open field, as in Texas? These Arizona men couldn't conduct a contest. The timer lifted his hand, and the shouting stopped.

"Thirty-six seconds," he announced. "What a fool of a timer," thought Turk McGlory. "It can't be so!" Then he saw Bud Oliver stride up with outstretched hand, and a lump came in his throat.

"Good boy!" said Bud. "You've saved the day for Texas."

And then the crowd pounced on him and hooted and shouted, "McGlory! McGlory!" until he was dizzy with it all. It was not as he thought it

WOMAN AVOIDS AN OPERATION

Hope Nearly Gone, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her

Star, N. C.—"My monthly spells gave me so much trouble, sometimes they would last two weeks. I was treated by two doctors without relief and they both said I would have to have an operation. I had my trouble for years and was unfit to do anything, and had given up all hope of ever getting any better. I read about your medicine in the 'Primitive Baptist' paper and decided to try it. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for about seven months and now I am able to do my work. I shall never forget your medicine and you may publish this if you want to as it is true."—Mrs. J. F. HURSEY, Star, N. C.

Here is another woman who adds her testimony to the many whose letters we have already published, proving that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound often restores health to suffering women even after they have gone so far that an operation is deemed advisable. Therefore it will surely pay any woman who suffers from ailments peculiar to her sex to give this good old fashioned remedy a fair trial.

Limited Armaments and Limitless Progress

History has taught that Peace not War brings happiness. It is to be hoped that this knowledge will be reflected clearly in the Disarmament Conference at Washington, November 11th, that the world's wealth may be conserved for the world's prosperity.

As with nations, so with men—success comes through ability to recognize and plan for the best in life.

Whatever the results of the Disarmament Conference, a conference in the home now may well decree a bank account for every member in the family—a bank account at

Utah Association Passes Resolution

At a recent meeting of the Utah Library Association the following resolution was passed: That Miss Mary E. Downey, the new Librarian and Director of the North Dakota Public Library Commission.

"We congratulate the State of Utah for having had the valuable and efficient services of Miss Mary Elizabeth Downey who has acted as State Librarian Organizer for the past eight years.

"Under her supervision our libraries have developed from a few unorganized book collections to more than 60 libraries with tax support. The book to a child, suited to his grade, in every school room movement, has swept the state. Due to her efforts we have an enviable record in county library organization. 13 county libraries already being established. The service of many of our school libraries has been greatly increased. Because of her stimulus the secondary schools are in the midst of promising library development.

"As an association interested in the further development of the library cause in Utah, we take this occasion to express our deep regret at her leaving our state and congratulate the state of North Dakota in securing her efficient services.

"We trust that the splendid foundation so well laid in Utah, will be continued with no less efficiency."

SCIENCE AND CONDUCT

BY WINONA WILCOX

"Your opinion would be appreciated." Thus lovers conclude their letters about their troubles.

Now opinion does not make the best solution of human problems.

No two individuals "see things the same way." Any set of facts stated to different persons will bring out different conclusions. Whoever discusses the simplest matter with a man and a woman, an ignorant and an informed person, with youth and with age, finds a sharp divergence of opinions, and consequently asks himself if there is nothing more reliable than opinion to apply to behavior.

To their query, "religion" is the immediate answer, religion with its creeds and moral codes which have stood the test of centuries; religion with its familiar and plain distinctions between right and wrong.

But it perhaps is the simplicity of the ancient codes of ethics which confuses so many persons when in doubt. Their own distress appears to them unique and outside the familiar solutions.

The harassed soul is liable to think in circles until involved in complexity and blinded to all straight paths of escape.

Then comes the appeal to a mind which has not been confused by pondering on a single theme. More light is demanded.

Such illumination is to be had in the sciences. One of the most startling revelations of modern science is the way it backs up or proves some ancient theories and practices.

Pioneer housewives who knew nothing of germs set their milk pails in the sun "to make them small sweet." Science proves that the direct rays of the sun are the best of germicides.

"Confession is good for the soul." To get one's trouble off one's mind by telling it to another is an ancient and successful practice. Lately it has been revamped as psychoanalysis, a new branch of psychology.

These letters are an original, if small, endeavor to treat lovers' problems according to the theory that one or another science will furnish a more desirable solution than anybody's personal opinion.

The affinity triangle cannot be solved by mathematics, but it can be settled by eugenics. What is best for the child and the race is best for the individual.

Or the affinity triangle can be worked out by economics in which the family unit, wages, rent and the cost of living are factors. The divorced man who pays alimony and also supports a new wife and home, must divide his income; thus the scale of living is lowered for all concerned.

Sociology covers the case of the man who abandons his family for a pretty girl. It is for the best interest of society that the father remain with his offspring. His vagrant love preferences must be sacrificed to the fact of parentage.

Briefly, the sciences furnish authoritative guides for human conduct. So used, science is no longer "dry-as-dust." It is as thrilling as purely romantic literature.

SHE HAD ASPIRATIONS

BY RUTH AGNES ABELING.

She had aspirations.

And unfortunately, dear old John, who regarded his carpet slippers with deep seated affection, didn't discover them during those long evenings in the porch swing or on the parlor settee.

They slipped by John just as if they weren't and later, when he was just about ready to dig out his beloved carpet slippers and say just what he thought in the language in which he thought it, the aspirations bobbed up and gummed up his entire matrimonial plan.

Lizzie decided that Beth would be a much more appropriate name for John to call her in the future. She hid the carpet slippers. And she developed an accent. Really she wore it quite fetchingly, but it confused poor John and more than once when he couldn't quite keep up he sought refuge behind a puzzled "Uh-huh!" and tried to fasten his spinning brain to some fact he was digging out of his reading.

This dashing into the potatoes and meat with an eager fork and pinching enough food to keep him busy for 30 minutes was at an end.

He had to sit quietly while Beth passed her plate and then serve her before he dared touch a morsel himself! The lettuce never came to the table any more in the good old-fashioned wilted way, with substantial eggs so that he knew he had eaten something when he had put it away.

And then one day John caught sight of his carpet slippers sticking out from under his traveling bag, way back in a corner of his clothes closet. He dragged them out and with a joyous vengeance he shaved his toes into them and marched down stairs.

He sat down in a chair and swung his feet up, on the divan and casually remarked to Lizzie that she could call up and say they weren't going to that fool cardy party tonight. There were tears from Lizzie and more tears. There were hard words from John and more hard words.

And the next morning when she thought it over sanely Lizzie realized that John was grieved because the nice sweet girl he thought he married had vanished, for a vitalized aspiration which he regarded with contempt.

KNOW HOW TO PRESS?

Perhaps, though you're quite an adept at remodeling garments, and do the work very neatly, they never have quite the look they should have? The fault may be in your ironing board.

For pressing cloth or other ironing material the board should be heavily padded. Nothing is better for this purpose than many layers of an old blanket. Seams under a damp cloth and a heavy iron will sink so deeply into this material that no trace of them will be seen.

Keep the iron constantly on the move. Never allow the cloth covering the garment to become really dry. All tackings should be removed before the garments pressed and platings should be pinned to the padding with very small pins.

HOLIDAY DAINTIES

The old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner dessert was pie, mince and pumpkin both, and an Indian pudding. Now we sometimes add ice cream to the pie and do without the pudding but an Indian pudding is delicious and more unusual than an ice. These desserts are as traditional as turkey itself. The whole dinner could be finished off with nuts, raisins and apples and black coffee.

Serve sweet cider with the dinner proper.

Mince Meat for Mince Pie

Two pounds beef heart, 3-4 cup suet, 4 cups chopped apples, 1 pound raisins, 1-2 cup shredded citron, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 tablespoon allspice, 1 cup bottled cider, 2 teaspoons salt, 3 cups brown sugar, 1-2 cup vinegar, 1-2 cup water.

Boil meat until tender. Skim during boiling. Remove fat and gristle and chop. Put suet through food chopper. Seed and chop raisins. Put all ingredients in preserving kettle and cook, stirring to prevent burning for half an hour after boiling begins. Seal in sterilizer jars while boiling hot. Jelly, preserves or canned fruit may be used in mince meat. Chopped nuts and candied lemon and orange peel are sometimes added. A mince pie should always have an upper and a lower crust. The crust should be well baked but as the filling has been cooked the oven should be hot enough to bake the pie quickly.

Indian Pudding

Four cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 eggs, 2-3 cup corn meal, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 scant teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon ginger, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon.

Scald milk and stir in meal. Let cool to lukewarm temperature. Add butter, eggs, well beaten, raisins, sugar, salt and spices. Mix thoroughly and pour into a buttered pudding dish. Bake in a slow oven for an hour and a half. Serve with hard sauce.

Hard Sauce

One cup butter, 2 cups powdered sugar, 1 egg (white), 1-2 teaspoon vanilla, nutmeg.

Beat butter to a cream, slowly beat in sugar. The sugar should be rubbed through a sieve. Beat in vanilla. Beat the egg white till stiff and dry and add to the first mixture. Mix carefully and pile in dish to serve. Sprinkle with a few gratings of nutmeg. Hard sauce is not a task to make if the butter is creamed before any sugar is added.

Steamed Fruit Pudding

Two-thirds cup finely chopped suet, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup milk, 3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1 orange, 1 cup stoned and chopped dates, 1 cup stoned and chopped prunes, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon ginger.

Work suet with the hands or a silver fork until creamy. The warmth of the hands will aid in the creaming. Stir in molasses and milk. Add soda, salt and spices to the flour and sift into the first mixture. Add juice and grated rind of the orange. Sift a little flour over the dates and raisins. Mix well and stir into the pudding mixture. Mix thoroughly and turn into a buttered mold. Steam three hours and serve with whipped cream.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER
(Established 1878)

A FINE OPPORTUNITY
Bismarck will be the residence of three new state officials probably on or about November 28. It would be a fine civic undertaking to give Mr. Nestos, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Kitchen a royal welcome. It could be made a state wide affair or limited to the community within whose gates these men will function for the next year at least. It should be strictly non-political. These men take their seats without party label or party significance and the celebration should be so arranged that the farmers of the county as well as the city residents would feel free to participate. Political animosities can well be forgotten now that the election is over and when fair minded men are interested only in promoting the welfare of the state and in getting back to normalcy.
The Tribune offers the suggestion for what it is worth to the civic bodies of the city, to its mayor and members of the city commission.

THE RED CROSS
Interest in the Red Cross has slumped some since the war. It was a natural subsidence because the Red Cross then touched every home intimately for it administered to the needs of the heroes who had gone across to fight the battle of democracy.
Now that there is some indifference to this society on the part of the masses there is more reason that safeguards should be thrown about the administrative officials of every local chapter. The Red Cross is an essential, vital organization and in time of peace functions as efficiently as in times of war. It is organized for great emergencies and hence is as it were "on its toes" all the time.

There are many patriotic people attending to its administrative functions, most of them without pay and it is a tribute to them that the taint of scandal or mismanagement seldom attaches to the society which is the greatest neutral organization in the world for the alleviation of distress.
The Burleigh county chapter under its various chairmen has had a wonderful record. It ranks high in the chapters of the state and today has a good reserve to meet all legitimate needs for relief—that is the demands for assistance that come within the Red Cross definition of appropriate relief.
Unfortunately Dr. F. R. Smyth who has served so efficiently as chairman is forced to resign as his duties with the federal health service do not permit him to give the time that he feels is necessary to the many problems that are arising daily. Mrs. Thomas Poole, the secretary of the chapter, who for a slight remuneration and then only since hostilities ceased, is also with the health service and cannot attend to both duties. She must retire after serving most efficiently and keeping the records so as to win commendation of all the chapter officials.

The members of the Burleigh county chapter then are confronted with the necessity of electing a new board to administer the affairs of the society. There should be a representative attendance at the membership meeting so that officials who are elected will direct the affairs in the same efficient and conservative manner as in the past.
There are so many calls upon the Red Cross that it takes a real diplomat and plenty of courage and tact to separate the legitimate demands from those which do not fall properly into Red Cross activities. Dr. Smyth has sensed perfectly the spirit of the Red Cross and he has refused to permit the chapter or its funds to be used for anything that could not be construed as a Red Cross function. This is not an easy task and it is going to be hard to find one who will take the pains and possesses the courage to protect the chapter against improper demands. His experience with poor relief for years in this community has been of vast assistance to him and it is with genuine regret that the Red Cross membership receives the news of the resignations of Dr. Smyth and Mrs. Poole. They kept up the high mark of efficiency established by Bradley Marks, the first chairman and later Rev. Buzelle.
It is up to the members to see that their successors are chosen from men who understand what the Red Cross society stands for and who will have the courage to prevent dissipation of Red Cross funds for objects that may be very worthy, but are not properly within the scope of Red Cross activities.

An economist says too much money makes a woman unhappy. True—when her neighbors have it.

PITCHERS
A baseball pitching machine, operated by compressed air and throwing any of the curves that man can throw, and never a wild ball, is described by Popular Mechanics magazine.
No doubt, too, inventors could make a mechanical Babe Ruth that could score a home-run every time.
But these are not as interesting as human ball players. Humans are not as perfect as machines. We all know and admit it. Naturally, we admire and cheer the player who can come the closest to mechanical precision.

SPORTS
What kind of sports will man have in the year 2000 when the average brain will know more than the 1921 encyclopedia? Contests then will center on useful achievement. Occasionally we have such cases now, as when corporation salesmen pair off into teams and contest to see which team can get the most business.
Loud cheers rise from the crew of the D. G. Kerr, Great Lakes steel freighter, when they learn that they have broken the world's record in loading and unloading iron ore. They loaded 12,382 tons of ore in 16 1/2 minutes, unloaded it in three hours and five minutes. Like trouble, harder to get out than in.

GIRL
At Lewiston, Me., an immigrant girl tells a court a story about arriving in America from Russia and getting a farm job where she was compelled to work from sunrise to dark for nothing but board and room. A lawyer, hearing about the case, helps her sue for $2255 back wages.
That girl came to this country with great hopes. Probably she is bitter against us and our institutions. If she were a man, she might become an agitator.
Americanization begins with kindly, tolerant, fair treatment of all immigrants. Their first employers usually determine what kind of citizens they'll become.

ROMANCE
Falling 600 feet into matrimony, is the experience of Donald Gale Page, 19-year-old sergeant of marines. Flying near Greenville, N. C., he joked about the hospital below. Next instant, the motor went dead, the plane dropped.
The airplane apparently had been brought down by one of Dan Cupid's arrows, for Page married the nurse who cared for him after he was out of the wreckage.
You never can tell when or how you are going to meet the woman destined to sit across the table from you at breakfast.

RELIEF
The American Red Cross is not getting much attention now, compared with war-time, but it is carrying on its good work as ably and persistently as during the European conflict.
Its relief operations during the last fiscal year included distribution of food, clothing and medical supplies to 500,000 persons in Austria, mostly children. That is typical of its work all through war-torn Europe. Soldiers go home, but the Red Cross goes on forever. Like woman its work is never done.

METHOD
Cicero's slave-secretary, M. T. Tiro, invented shorthand about 2000 years ago. This leads an eastern editor to comment that there is nothing new under the sun, that we haven't progressed much.
But Tiro had a secret. His shorthand notes on wax. He had neither pencils nor notebooks. The method has been improved. That is the way with most progress—just a better, faster way of doing the old things.

EDITORIAL REVIEW
Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

SLAMMING A WHINER
A metropolitan paper recently published a letter from a discouraged young man who said the whole world was against him, and that he was just about convinced there is no use trying to get along. The writer said he was a bookkeeper who had plodded along, while others in the same office had passed him. He had tried one thing after another but had not been able to find anything that seems to agree with him. The young man ended his letter with the old plaint that the "world owes everybody a living."
The letter brought a shower of communications which not only threw light on the situation, but which also furnish an illuminating insight into what the public thinks of a man who hasn't the nerve to stick on and strike just a little harder when adversities confront him. One correspondent said the young man might do some good if he picked out one line and stuck to it. Another said it did not appear to be a matter of some job that would agree with the whiner, but the inability of the latter to adapt himself to something long enough to give it a working chance. One writer, more direct in thought than literary in style, summed up his opinions in the following paragraph, and he comes close to the truth: "The world may owe everybody a living all right, but some guys are too lazy to go out and collect it."—Youngstown Telegram.

WHAT PAPERS ARE SAYING ABOUT THE RECALL

JUST WHERE DO WE STAND
The voters of North Dakota have elected an Independent governor, attorney general and commissioner of agriculture and labor, but by a slight majority these same voters apparently voted against the laws proposed by the Independents. The candidates are the main issue, in the mind of the great mass of people, in every election, and the candidates at and near the top of a ballot always receive more votes than those toward the bottom. Also voters are more interested in persons than in abstract measures. Notwithstanding the long coaching by both sides, there also doubtless was confusion in minds of some as to the way they wanted to vote on the amendment and laws.
The big result, however, is highly satisfactory to the Independents. Our laws were so well amended at the 1920 election that most of the radical and dangerous features fostered by the out-and-out socialist-looters, already we've eliminated and had been checked.
Frazier, Lemke and Hagan were recalled from office by the people of North Dakota, because the people had utterly lost confidence in the administration of these three men. The voters wanted to stop and stop the extravagance, the waste, and the mismanagement of the state funds. Not only was this mandate positively stated by the voters who went to the polls, but, according to the league organs' own admission, thousands of former leaguers stayed at home, away from the polls, and refused to vote at all. These too had lost confidence in the administration, and faith in its program. What all the people will demand will be just what the Independents promised, "honesty, economy, efficiency, open books and restored credits" and the first thing asked will be "open books." After five years of secret government, the citizens and taxpayers of North Dakota, have demanded, and rightly, to know just where they stand; then reconstruction will follow and restored credit and confidence once more return to North Dakota.—Jamestown Alert.

The new administration will be confronted by very serious problems, and at the outset the public must be warned not to expect too much. The world was not made in a day. Systems are not created over night. Aladdin's lamp does not exist in prosaic every day life. Good things usually develop slowly. The best of men and women make mistakes despite the purest intentions.
The mess in which the leaders of the Nonpartisan league have involved North Dakota in their five years of strenuous efforts cannot be corrected immediately. The tangled skein must be unraveled slowly and by patient effort. The evils must be purged away and new and strong structures erected in their places. This takes time, experimenting, correction. That the problems will be attacked in earnest and with worthy purpose as rapidly as possible, there can be no doubt. There will be criticism from the local and doubtless misrepresentation and plain lying. The agencies that could lie with the fluency and fertility of invention displayed during the last and previous campaigns will not suddenly change their color. The disappointment in defeat may even sharpen the tongues and edge their hate. But these forces should be appraised by this time for what they are worth. Their attacks should be quickly cataloged and then ignored.
The men and women who have opposed the election of Mr. Nestos and his new administration are advised to wait and learn their real character, purpose and work before they criticize. It should be axiomatic that the bulk of the people really desire good conditions and differ only as to the proper means of obtaining them. If the Nestos administration can improve the credit, finances, business and prosperity of North Dakota the most recalcitrant Nonpartisan leaguer will benefit and in common sense ought to applaud.—Minot Daily News.

GOVERNOR PREUS AND THE RECALL
Joseph A. Kitchen, newly elected commissioner of agriculture in North Dakota, says Governor Preus influenced enough voters to turn the tide in favor of recall of the Nonpartisan League triumvirate. If the governor could persuade himself that that was the fact, he probably would consider his campaigning in North Dakota as one of the very best things he ever had done in the way of public service.
Some of the newspapers friendly to the Nonpartisan League raised a question of political ethics or propriety in connection with Governor Preus' taking part in the North Dakota campaign. They suggested that he had no business to leave the office to which he was elected in order to go across the state line and "butt in" on a political fight. It was a family affair, they said, and North Dakota voters might well resent the intrusion from the outside.
If there was any such resentment in North Dakota the fact was not reflected in the action of voters at the polls—at least not in the general results. Surface indications were, according to Mr. Kitchen, that Governor Preus was well received wherever he spoke and that his counsel was accepted as disinterested and sound.

EVERETT TRUE BY CONDO

It is a mistake to say that the people of Minnesota were without substantial interest in the outcome of the North Dakota election. North Dakota could not suffer in its material affairs as it has suffered under Townleyism and be the only victim. Whatever inflicts a general harm on North Dakota inflicts harm also on Minnesota. By virtue of his office and the circumstances of his election last November Governor Preus is the embodied expression of the opposition of the electorate of Minnesota to the kind of rule our neighbor has experienced in the last five years. Particularly is he entitled to a voice in view of the efforts that have been made to bring this state under the sway of Townleyism. Governor Preus was enlisted in defensive warfare as a campaigner in North Dakota just as surely as the United States military forces engaged in defensive warfare when they went overseas to help whip Germany.—Minneapolis Tribune.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS
By Olive Barton Roberts

The Twins went to the houses of all the missing fish-wives to see if any of them had returned, but nary a one had showed up—and here it was, long after six.
Mr. Fifteen-Spine Stickleback (who was always considered aristocratic not only because he was handsome and had fifteen sharp spines on his back, which stood up proudly, but because he had such a long high-sounding name) was so indignant he turned a bright green. There he was, so anxious about the eggs 'n' everything, and Mrs. Stickleback not caring a lead mine about anything. As Mr. Stickleback confided to the Twins, he had built the nest to begin with—and a beauty it was, all made up of glistening coralline sea-weed and shaped like a large pea—and now he had to stay home and watch it, to see that no greedy neighbor came along and ate up the eggs (which would soon be his children for his supper. He knew his fish neighbors so well that, unlike his wife, he knew the danger of leaving the family for even the half of an instant. And if he didn't leave, how could he get food? And if Mrs. Stickleback didn't come soon, how could he leave? No wonder he was mad.
"You see," he went on talkatively, "Busy Boar-Fish, my next door neighbor, will come along looking as innocent as a spring lamb, with his snout all tucked in as nice a pig, and when I'm not looking he will shoot his snout out like a telescope, and dig down into the nest and gub up our egg children, like a flash. Why, he can even reach into the hole in the rock where you couldn't put your finger, and get Mrs. Butter-Fish's eggs."

THE GIRL ON THE JOB
How to Succeed—How to Get Ahead—How to Make Good
By JESSIE ROBERTS
PUBLICITY WORK.

MANY women are making a success in publicity work, and it is a growing opportunity. You do not need to know how to write yourself. What you require is the ability to get things into print, to know where to go for results, to handle the sort of material people are glad to hear and willing to pay for. One way is to begin on speculation. Get something that wants publicity, and find your medium, and, if necessary, your collaborator. When you get the publicity you take the result to the firm who wanted it and are given the promised check. You may have to divide this up, but it's a begin ning.

"I began in a very small way," I was told by a young woman who has just as much work as she can handle. "Just went about doing little jobs, getting something in here another bit there. I used to sit up nights thinking of original ways to exploit whatever it might be I had on hand, and I got all sorts of people to work with me on spec. Presently it began to pay, work kept on coming in. I got to know a lot of useful people, and now...

"And there's no better fun on earth," concluded my young friend. "It is work full of variety, full of human nature. I have a partner now, and she and I are both busy every minute, and we love it. Also, we are laying up a nice little nest egg for the future, when we mean to be able to travel and see the world and be as idle as old people should be."

"What's in a Name?"
By MILDRED MARSHALL
Facts about your name, its history, meaning, and what was derived, suggest your lucky day and lucky jewel.

REBECCA.
OF GOOD old Biblical stock is Rebecca, which is translated "hooped cord." It is said to come from the Hebrew word rabak—at least that was the origin of the first Rebecca, a name which seems to have been coined especially to be bestowed upon the wife of Isaac, of Biblical fame.

The Rebeccas of the world should make excellent wives, since the word Ribka, a later rendition of rabak, which means a cord with a noose, is given to convey the firmness of the marriage cord. The Septuagint and the Latin both give evidence of the name Rebecca in very early times. Another version, said to be the authorized one, makes her Rebekah. This latter form seems to be the one affected today by every young miss who is called by the name of the good old Biblical heroine.

Despite the religious significance which history has given to the name, Rebecca has been a great favorite with writers, who have employed her in more or less frivolous romances. Two Rebeccas who will never be forgotten by present-day readers are the "Recky" Sharp of Thackeray's immortal "Vanity Fair," and the charmingly quaint little "Rebecca" of Sunnybrook Farm, which is endeared to the hearts of American admirers of Kate Douglas Wiggin.

The bloodstone is Rebecca's talismanic gem. It has the power to guard its wearer from all dangers and preserve her bodily health, and secure her consideration and respect. Moreover, it is said to guard her from deception, especially of her lover. Sunday is her lucky day and six her lucky number. The violet, signifying modesty, is her flower.

BIG TEN WILL WATCH BATTLES SET FOR TODAY

Chicago and Ohio State, Unbeaten Teams, Will Clash on the Gridiron

OTHER GAMES IN WEST

Chicago Nov. 5.—Three of the undefeated teams of the "Big Ten" were in action today, two of them playing each other. The Buckeyes invaded the Maroon's territory and Big Ten fans throughout the conference eagerly watched this game because of the strength each team has shown and the importance of the struggle.

Chicago is Ohio's strongest remaining opponent for the conference title, while on the other hand victory by Chicago would leave her with one more serious contender in the championship race, Wisconsin on the 19th, and a season of notable victories headed by that over Princeton. Both Iowa and Wisconsin still are unbeaten. The latter has no game today and expects no trouble in winning from Michigan next Saturday. Iowa confidently attacked Minnesota at Minneapolis today with no other shot than listing another victim and retaining her place in the championship clash. Northwestern and Purdue tail-enders, were to fight it out for cellar honors today at Lafayette, Ind.

Michigan and Indian in addition to Wisconsin are idle.

Outside of the conference an interesting game for the south Illinois route is that between Illinois and DePaul.

PRINCETON TO MEET HARVARD

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 5.—Princeton and Harvard meet on the gridiron at the Palmer stadium in the first battle of the year between members of the Big Three. The game was expected to break the tie that has existed for two years between the Crimson and the Orange and Black. More than 50,000 spectators were expected to be present at the contest.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR SPORT CLUB OF TEX RICKARD

New York Nov. 5.—In an effort to recover money said to have been loaned Tex Rickard for promotion of the Johnson-Jeffries bout in 1910 and other big sporting events, Frank D. Armstrong, broker, today sought to have the promoter and two corporations in which he is interested, thrown into the hands of a receiver.

Upon Armstrong's application, Supreme Court Justice Hotchkiss signed an order requiring Rickard, the Madison Square Garden corporation and the Madison Square Garden Sporting club Inc., to show cause next Monday why a receiver should not be appointed for them interests.

In his complaint Armstrong stated he advanced Rickard $10,000 to aid in promoting the Johnson-Jeffries contest, also that he helped the promoter when he managed the Gans-Nelson bout in Goldfield, Nev., and when he obtained the lease on Madison Square Garden.

SHURTLEFF'S HEAD ONLY ONE THIS STORY NEEDS

"SCRAPPY" SHURTLEFF, BROWN'S CENTER.

By N. E. A. Service.

Evidence that Nov. 5—Never wearing a head gear and with the sleeves of his jersey always rolled up nearly to his elbows, Fred Shurtleff, Brown's scrappy center and one of the leading center men of the east, always presents a spectacle on the gridiron.

For four years Shurtleff has not missed a minute from a game through injuries and Coach E. N. Robinson says that he well deserves the name of "Scrappy." Always in the thick of the fray and usually at the bottom of the heap when there is one, Shurtleff can be found.

As a snapper back he has not made a bad pass in two seasons and when it comes to defensive playing, Coach Robinson has him backing up the line just as Glenn Warner has the mighty Herb Stein backing up the Panther line.

And Shurtleff does his work in stand's ylb, for he is not afraid to hurl himself into a mass of flying human beings and he is not afraid to leave his feet in order to make a tackle. Fully fifty per cent of the tackles made by Brown this year may be credited to Shurtleff.

"Head gears are no good, you have to spend too much time pulling them this way or that way and I've never found any use for them," said Shurtleff when asked why he did not wear one.

This is Shurtleff's last season and every one is pulling for him to go through this season without an injury.

He would rather play football than eat, he is the first man out for practice each afternoon and one of the last to leave.

"Oh, for a team of Shurtleffs," said Coach Robinson, recently "There is a fighter who never knows when he is licked."

GRAFTON WINS DISTRICT TITLE

Devils Lake N. D. Nov. 5.—Grafton high school football team defeated Devils Lake here Friday afternoon, 39 to 7, in the decisive game of the district championship series in the northeastern district. Grafton had little trouble with the locals. With caps carried the ball over the goal line in the last quarter of the game for Devils Lake's only touchdown. Grafton's victory definitely decided which team will represent the northern half of the state in the championship series. Williston has eliminated all teams aspiring to championship of the northwestern district.

TOMMY MURPHY TOPS WINNERS FOR '21 TRACK SEASON

TOMMY MURPHY.

BY ROY GROVE.

Tommy Murphy, veteran track athlete, has found both a home and in his own way, a career cut for the season of 1921.

In the season he has won the Columbus and the American Legion's prize for the best of the old time in the state. He won the Arion Cup for the best of the old time in the state.

Murphy held a track record throughout the season with three victories in pulling the leather. He spent his holiday with the family.

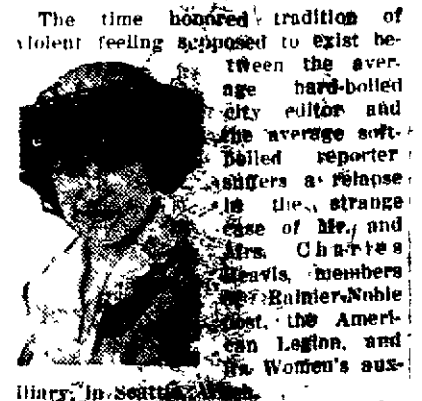

with Eurice Belle. This fast little trotter was timed for the last half of a heat at Toledo in less than a minute and she was at once marked as one of the future winners of the matron and champion hip stallion stakes.

Murphy followed this with a row of victories with Silladur and before he met with defeat at Hartford he had gloomed Rose Scott and kept on toppling frequently with her for the balance of the season.

After Murphy slipped out of the Hartford running, he entered Rose Scott in the 207 class at Syracuse. She finished second coming close to line the Great. But the following week at Columbus she defeated a field of 12, including Guardian Trust, in 1:01 1/4.

THEY'RE GOOD "LEGION MEN"

Washington State Newspaper Fair are Members of the Ex-Service Men's Organizations.

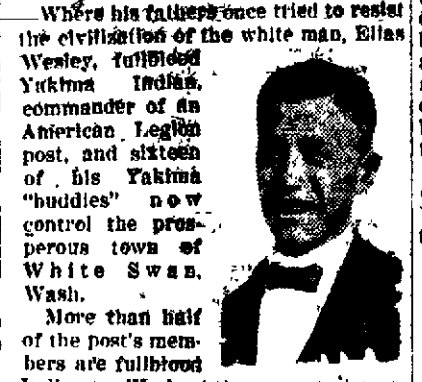

The time honored tradition of violent feeling supposed to exist between the average hard-boiled city editor and the average soft-balled reporter suffers a relapse in the strange case of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heavis, members of the American Legion, and the Women's suffrage.

Before the war Heavis was a city editor and Dora Deane, a Pacific coast woman newspaper writer, was one of his cub reporters. When Heavis went to war with the 41st Division cavalry, Miss Dora became city editor. Returning after the armistice, the ex-city editor sought to regain the editorial reins by marrying Miss Deane. Finding that as Mrs. Heavis she was the managing editor while he became a cub, Heavis forsook the game and became associated Press correspondent in Seattle.

"He was pretty good as a cub reporter," Heavis says. "But as managing editor, she is a wonder." Mrs. Heavis continues as Dora Deane of the Seattle Daily Times.

INDIAN, LEGION POST BOSS

Elías Wesley and Gibson Washington Buddies After General Town of White Swan.

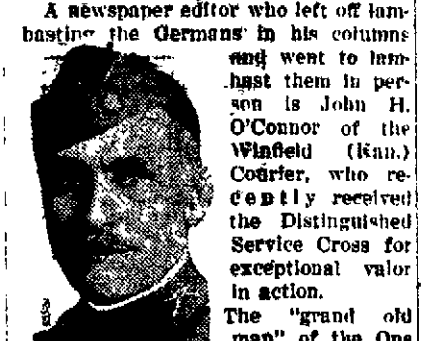

Where his father once tried to resist the civilization of the white man, Elías Wesley, fullblooded Yakima Indian, commander of an American Legion post, and sixteen of his Yakima "buddies" now control the prosperous town of White Swan, Wash.

More than half of the post's members are fullblooded Indians. Wesley, the commander, is the village meat cutter. The remainder of the Commercial club, are engaged in business in the town. All are graduates of a government school and are better educated than the average American.

Because he was a meat cutter, when Wesley enlisted in the United States navy they made him ship's cook on the U. S. Western Chief. In the membership of the post there is a Medal of Honor, a Medallion-Military, a Cross de Guerre and a Purple Cross.

"GRAND OLD MAN" OF 137TH

Kansas Editor Recently Received Distinguished Service Cross for Valor in Action.

A newspaper editor who left off lambasting the Germans in his columns and went to launch them in person is John H. O'Connor of the Winfield (Kan.) Courier, who recently received the Distinguished Service Cross for exceptional valor in action.

The "grand old man" of the One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Infantry regiment during its service in France, Editor O'Connor ably commanded a battalion during the heaviest fighting and won the highest rank of lieutenant colonel. In September, 1918, in Montreuilly Wood he received a note penciled on the back of an old envelope, telling him he was the highest officer left in the regiment. Fortwith he assumed command of his own unit, killed or all other troops in the wood, organized a brigade front, beat off two fierce attacks and directed the advance on Exermont.

Mr. O'Connor attended the first caucus of the American Legion in Paris in 1919 and was one of the newspaper men who drew the resolution giving the Legion its name.

FARM, CURE FOR SHELLSHOCK

Thousands of Victims Have Recovered According to Data Collected by American Legion.

The symphony of droning mowers cultivating and threshing is a specific cure for shellshock. Of the thousands of World War veterans who turned to agriculture at the termination of hostilities, virtually all have recovered from the effects of shellshock. This is shown by a recent survey which is being studied by the national organization of the American Legion. The report likewise indicates that shellshock victims who settled in the cities have not yet regained their health.

The experiment of sending shellshock cases to the farms was tried with success in Canada, where more than 25,000 soldiers have taken farms under the soldiers' re-establishment act. The government has loaned more than $10,000,000 to these men, and their first year's crop was valued at approximately $14,000,000. Today the average soldier-farmer, the survey concludes, is enjoying ruddy health and sound finances.

There are 15,000,000 Jews in the world.

The course of a stream is being diverted to allow for the construction of an immense stadium at Pasadena, Calif.

AND HE NEVER BUMPS HIS NOSE!

FIFTEEN COUNTIES ARE HOLDING COST SCHOOLS UNDER AG. COLLEGE EXPERTS

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 5.—Fifteen counties are holding half-day cost estimating schools during the period November 1 to 23, at which wheat and potato production costs are being handled, according to Rex F. Willard, farm economist, Agricultural College, who with Huitzel Metzger, is holding the sessions in co-operation with the county agents.

Farmers attending the sessions will estimate the items which enter into the production costs, and the combined agreement of the 20 to 50 farmers attending each meeting will be used as charges and cost items, according to Mr. Willard. The estimates for figuring costs of potato production, for example, include man-labor on acre-board, horse labor, seed, disinfectants and spray material, sacks, picking up and miscellaneous costs. The total operating cost, the operating cost, the barrel and the net cost a bushel will then be calculated.

Besides furnishing some experience in figuring costs, stated Mr. Willard today, the meetings cause the farmers to think about the proper use of labor, and of various farming systems. The figures point to the high peak load for labor which occurs in a single cropping system, and incidentally shows the big risk and the attendant labor trouble under that system. The farmers can also compare costs of and profits in raising potatoes as compared to wheat,—of diversified farming versus single-cropping in a word. The tillage practices, crop rotations, seed and other factors are also brought into the discussion.

The schedule for the cost schools is as follows:

For wheat—Nov. 1, New Rockford, 2, Cass county, 4, Fossenden, 7, Washburn, 8, Mohall, and 9, Bowbells.

Nov. 10, Mountrail county 15-16, Foster county, 18, Crosby, Pembina and 22-23 Kidder county.

Nov. 3, Walsh county, 11, Richland county, 12, Cass county, 13, Westhope, and 17, Minot.
